From the Secretary

Hello Members,

My apologies for the lateness of this newsletter, but I am juggling about three roles on the committee as well as my normal day to day responsibilities (work, family, study etc) and it takes a while to put together and collect all the materials needed. I have been caretaking the role of Editor for some time, but will happily hand it off if someone takes an interest. You just need to be competent in either Word or Publisher (I am happy to teach anyone interested). The job of editor is great for anyone who is interested in doing something for the club but perhaps cannot take on a committee position due to distance or physical limitations. It is one of the first jobs I ever did when I came onto committee.

I would also like to thank Lisa Cantlon for her time on the committee as trophy officer. She has had to resign due to personal commitments. This is another role that I am caretaking at the moment. I have managed to get ahead and we have got trophies organised for November and at least two shows more. If anyone has an interest in taking on this role, please let me know. It involves negotiation with trophy makers or sometimes arts and craft people you see at markets to get unique bull terrier themed items made. It also involves ordering the sashes and setting up the table at shows. It is great fun for a creative person.

In light of the above subject I would also like to remind everyone that the role of committee is a voluntary position and if you have criticisms about the way your club is being run, the appropriate course of action is to attend meetings and or email the club with your constructive feedback, and perhaps your offer of help. We conducted a survey at our May show to ask our members what they would like to see offered and we are considering all responses. I have collated the responses and published in this newsletter.

There were a few mentions of holding members comps. We originally got rid of these due to poor attendance, the last one we held was at Bulla and only 8 dogs entered, all belonging to committee. The committee already give up heaps of time and money to help the club out, and running a members comp in which only committee dogs are entered is a pointless activity. With entries to our main shows about a quarter of what they were when we held members comps, I doubt we would improve attendance at members comps, however I am happy to be proven wrong.

Cheers Deb

From the President

Hi Members

Well its already half way through the year which means our November shows will be here before we know it. The committee are full steam ahead preparing for what will hopefully be a fantastic weekend.

We had a good turnout at our most recent May Championship and Speciality shows, & I would like to once again thank our judges Pat and Paul, stewards & ticket writers for taking the time out of their busy lives to attend. For all of those who attended as exhibitors and spectators, we thank you & congratulations to all winners be that in shows, runner ups, challenges, class wins, opposites & class placers etc. At the end of the day whether you win a trophy or not, showing should also be about having a good time, seeing some wonderful examples of the breed, good sportsmanship & comradery towards each other.

Thank you to the committee for your time & efforts as always leading up to & on the weekend, & thank you those of you who helped out & offered a helping hand throughout the weekend.

During the May show weekend, the club handed out a survey with the aim to receive honest feedback on how the club & the club committee is performing in their eyes. The questions were based on obtaining feedback on areas such as what the club & committee is doing well, where the club & committee can improve, what members wanted more & less of, what events are, aren't & would be attended & so on.

The answers varied with some questions, however there were a few things that stood out, one is that club members would like more from their club, committee need to provide more for those members i.e. for those who do not attend Bully Walks. There were also comments in regards to the perception of the current committee which were not favourable indeed, while yes there are areas the committee can improve, some of the answers received were in fact a little surprising, however we asked for your honest feedback & whatever the feedback received was, we the committee were open to hear, accept & take on board. A few of the comments were that the current committee does not encourage bringing the members 'together'. We all know there is a lot of 'history' between fellow members & as much as the committee can & are willing to encourage, the committee's role in bringing members together is only just one part, it is vital that you also play a part if this 'togetherness' is to succeed.

We have heard you & are working on some great events for upcoming future. You can read more on the survey & the collated results in this newsletter.

Unfortunately due to personal reasons Lisa Cantlon resigned from her position on the committee not long after our May shows. Lisa brought many fresh ideas to the table, always willing to help out, put her hand up for any task, her efforts & hard work did not go unnoticed & we are very sad to see her go. I would like to take this opportunity to thank you Lisa, we wish you all the best for the future & we do hope that we will see you back on committee again in the future.

Spring is just around the corner, but in the meantime keep warm & for those attending Ironbark next month, drive safely and good luck.

Sherri Johnston J

Vale–Russell Lamonby

The BTCV is sad to advise that Russell Lamonby from Emred Kennels in UK passed away recently. He was a great contributor to the breed and many bull terrier breeders throughout Australia have used Emred lines in their breeding program.

I highly recommend visiting the Emred website at <http://www.emred.co.uk> and having a look through the history of this breeder who has made such a big mark on the breed. He will be sadly missed. Photographs from Emred website

Is there a difference? Comparison of golden retrievers and dogs affected by breed-specific legislation regarding aggressive behavior

Abstract

Between 2000 and 2002, legislation in Lower Saxony insinuated a special dangerousness of certain dog breeds, and controls were imposed on them. Exemption was only possible if the dogs passed a standardized temperament test. In a previous study, test results of 415 dogs belonging to breeds affected by the legislation were analyzed. Ninety-five percent of the dogs showed no indication of disturbed aggressive communication or aggressive behavior in inappropriate situations. Because a control group was not available at that time, these results referred to a comparison between the affected breeds. In this study, golden retrievers were tested and used as control group. Seventy golden retrievers were tested in the temperament test. The order of testing was: veterinary examination, learning test, situations of dog–human-, dog–environment-, and dog–dog-contact, and obedience. Levels of escalation in aggressive behavior were scored using a scale of 1–7. A total of 58.57% of the dogs did not show aggressive behavior (Scale 1). Forty percent displayed aggressive behavior referring to Scale 2, and 1.43% showed aggressive behavior referring to Scale 5. A total of 98.57% of the dogs reacted appropriately, and 1.43% displayed aggressive behavior in inappropriate situations. In the previous study, 95% of the animals reacted appropriately, whereas 5% displayed excessive aggressive communication or aggressive behavior in inappropriate situations. Comparing the results of golden retrievers and breeds affected by the legislation, no significant difference was found. A scientific basis for breed specific lists does not exist. Therefore, legislation in Lower Saxony was changed, and breed lists were withdrawn.

Buyer Beware!

From the Secretary: Recently I was contacted by a man who was the unfortunate victim of a scammer selling bull terriers. Sadly, he parted with his money and then the scammer asked him for more money to transport the dog. He sent me all the information they used to scam him and I have included it on the next few pages so you can see the kind of activity they use to suck people in.

Please be on the look out for anyone selling puppies that appears dodgy so we can out them! The scammer below advertised on <http://www.ozfreeads.com.au/> and used a paypal link for the money transfer. Once the money was transferred, they sent the buyer a fake sale agreement. Then a second email advising the buyer that the puppy was shipped but was being held by authorities as a special transport crate was needed at an additional cost. This was to try and get further money and place a sense of urgency on the situation.

Hi Deb, I have a new PhD student (Lillian Brancalion) working on this and we are just about to do whole genome sequence of two Bullterriers. At the moment we are working on a candidate gene that we have been able to identify.

BULL TERRIERS WITH BRITTLE BONES STUDY UPDATE

September 2017

We only have a small number of Australian dogs represented, but we also have some from an international collaboration on LADD that we are involved with. The collection of the results suggests that the disorder is inherited. Both carrier dogs and homozygous dogs for the gene_locus are affected, although the carrier dogs are more mildly affected and seem to be able to “grow out of it”.

The locus that we have identified contains a gene that in other species causes a condition called “pseudopseudohypoparathyroidism” which fits with something that somehow mimics hypoparathyroidism. Parathyroid hormone affects the metabolism of calcium and what I believe is happening (although we have not found the exact defect yet) is that when the puppies are growing rapidly they are unable to metabolise dietary calcium as well as they should and as a result their bones are weaker. If you can get them through this period, then with a bit of extra dietary calcium you may be able to overcome the issue. For dogs that are homozygous for the defect there is no rescue and they die. Some may die in-utero.

The disorder gene appears to occur at low frequency also in the USA Bullterriers so it is not unique to this population. I hope to do some more investigation soon, but in the meantime the danger signals for carriers are dogs that have large heads (as hypoparathyroidism causes a reduction in circulating calcium, the animal tries to compensate by extracting it from the bones which become big and spongy). In humans, this gene causes a condition called “Albright hereditary osteodystrophy” I hope to sequence the actual gene to identify a defect soon.

There is another potential locus on a different chromosome that is inherited as a recessive but there are no obvious genes that might cause the issue on that chromosome.

Pointing the Bone at Cancer – In Dogs Cats and Humans

By Dr. Ian Billinghamurst

A history into Molecular Biology, this book goes into extensive history and explanations of all aspects of Cancer in humans and companion animals. It elaborates on all the terminology use by veterinarians and oncologists. A 'must read' for anyone who is, or has been affected by Cancer, either in their dogs/cats or humans. Every word that you may come across with this disease is explained in detail and simplified into a language for anyone to understand. Genetic codes are unravelled and clarified in full. The entire history of Cancer is expanded.

Factual – Cancer is a metabolic disease where the mitochondrial energy production is fundamentally altered or compromised. There is only one disease to attack, not hundreds. Environmental and nutritional habits are the root causes of the disease. Part Six – Two modern Pandemics and the modern Veterinary machine on nutrition make very interesting reading.

This is heavy going in parts, but well worth the effort to understand how the "Cancer Industry" works and how veterinarians keep on recommending we feed our animals the very thing that is causing the cancers in the first place. Evolution tells us what our animals fed on before 'fast foods for dogs and cats' became available. This book will change your thinking on what you eat and what you feed your pets.

TNT – Targeted Nutritional Therapy for both humans, dog and cats produces a compelling result for the eradication of Cancer. Sugar is the villain. Cancer cells feed on sugar. TNT targets the species (human or companion animal) with the nutritional requirements that the species' evolved to eat naturally. Our Western diets are the problem for all groups. Towards the end of the book Dr. Billinghamurst explains how a Ketogenic diet works on all cancers and other diseases. He breaks down the reasons why vegetables, seaweed, fruits, natural fats will starve the cancer cells.

Dr. Billinghamurst kindly donated this MUST READ book to our library and is now available for loan.

Britain's rarest dog breed the Otterhound is dying out after it becomes rarer than the white rhino

Stephen White 9/07/2018

The rarest dog breed in the UK, the Otterhound, is sadly now facing extinction. Britain's rarest breed dog is facing extinction, after just 24 puppies were registered with the Kennel Club last year.

Otterhounds were originally bred, as their name suggests, to hunt otters, but they have been dying out since the practice was banned in 1978.

Britain's Otterhound Club is now appealing for prospective dog owners to choose an Otterhound and protect the breed's future. They're rarer than giant pandas or white rhino, with fewer than 1,000 worldwide and 300 in Britain. Will Lazenby is a vet from Coylton in Ayrshire and member of the Otterhound members club. He says the hunting dogs, which were popular in the Borders for hundreds of years, are the perfect pet. "French bulldogs, pugs and Labradors are usually at the top of the lists of the most popular dogs," he said.

"These are good breeds but people don't consider these wonderful dogs.

"It's sad as they were considered useful dogs for many, but they're also excellent pets."

King John of England used the animals to hunt otters in the 12th Century, with Elizabeth I becoming the first Lady Master of Otterhounds. They're known as the Amiable Hound, or the Clown of Hounds, for their gentle and playful nature. The breed that we recognise today dates back to the 18th Century, and their popularity peaked in the middle of the 19th Century. "They're not a rich or a posh person's dog, though," said Will. "Otterhounds were seen as a working class dog. They were said to help rid the village ponds of otters feeding on fish.

"Dog owners would take Otterhounds to hunt otters, and lots of family and friends would go along too.

"It became an event, people would take picnics and make a day of it.

"To me it would be very sad if an historic breed like the Otterhound was to die out."

The breed was blamed, though, for a shortage in otter numbers, and laws banning otter hunts were passed in Scotland in 1979 - although the dogs were unlikely to have been to blame.

Judith Ashworth is a co-ordinator of the Otterhound Club and has kept them for 35 years.

"They were popular dogs among the hunting community, because otters were considered vermin," she said.

"The decline of otter populations was blamed on Otterhounds and hunting of them was banned — but it turned out to be nitrates and poisons used on the land which was seeping into rivers.

"Otterhounds got the blame and they became greatly reduced after that."

Will has urged dog lovers to consider the breed in future, saying they're the perfect family pet.

"You read a lot of rubbish on the internet about Otterhounds being boisterous and needing a lot of exercise, and that they need to live in the country," Will explained.

"But they're not like that at all. They don't need hours and hours of exercise, and are generally very adaptable dogs." And Judith, who has two Otterhounds, agreed that the dogs make excellent pets.

"They're great big cuddly teddy bears," she said. "Although they've got a mind of their own they love children."
